Objectives and Investment Policy

The fund aims to generate long-term capital appreciation.
The fund invests primarily in the equities or equity-related securities issued by companies located in Japan or deriving a preponderant part of their income or assets from Japan. These securities will primarily be listed or traded on stock exchanges in Japan, although the fund may to a lesser extent invest in securities listed elsewhere.
The investment manager is permitted to choose which investments should be held in the fund. The fund does not use a benchmark.

The investment manager invests in companies which it believes are undervalued and are experiencing growth that is not yet reflected in their share price.
Any income arising from the fund's investments is usually reinvested.
Investors have the opportunity to redeem their units in the fund on each business day.
For further information please see the 'Investment Objective and Policies' sections of the supplement to the prospectus for the fund.

Why is the fund in this category?

Funds in this category have shown a high historical volatility. Volatility describes how much the value of the fund went up and down in the past.

The fund invests in the shares of some smaller to medium sized companies which may have a more limited market than securities issued by larger companies.

The fund mainly invests in one country. It is therefore vulnerable to the market sentiment of that country. This type of fund can carry a higher risk when compared to a fund with a broader investment universe.

This unit class's net asset value is calculated in US dollars while the fund's investments are primarily denominated in Japanese yen. The fund's performance may therefore be adversely affected by exchange rate movements.

Full detail of the fund's risk factors is included in the fund's prospectus.
